WIC: None
Child Care: $10,000 liquid assets
Rite Care/Share: None

¹ There is also a "net income" limit for SNAP benefits. For households with a disabled or senior family member, there is no gross income test, just a net income limit.

² For WIC a pregnant woman counts as two. Children and pregnant women receiving Rite Care are considered "Income eligible" for WIC.

³ A pregnant woman counts as a household size dependent on the number of babies she is carrying. For example, a single woman pregnant with twins counts as a household size of three. A parent of one child who is pregnant with twins is a household size of four, for both her eligibility and the eligibility of her child
